

Sandra Richmond

Contributed by Meighan Szigeti

Sandra Richmond is a partner at Stohn Hay Cafazzo Dembroski Richmond LLP. Her practice focuses on media, entertainment and communications law, and on corporate and commercial law within those industries. She represents a variety of clients including producers, broadcasters, distributors, writers, performers, government agencies and financial institutions, and provides advice in a number of areas including rights acquisition, shareholder structures, co-productions, financing, distribution, broadcast licences, merchandising, new media, and errors and omissions insurance. Richmond has written and edited numerous articles on legal issues for various publications including Playback. She has also participated in panels and presented seminars on legal and business affairs in the entertainment and media industries for the Canadian Film Centre, the Ontario Media Development Corporation, Women in Film and Television, the National Screen Institute, Women in the Director's Chair, the New Media Business Alliance, the Canadian Short Film Festival, the Saskatchewan Motion Picture Association, and the Manitoba Motion Picture Industry Association and Film Training Manitoba. Richmond started her legal career in 1996 at Toronto law firm McMillan Binch.